FOOTBALL GAME THIS AFTERNOON.

Boulder University Huskies Are Here and Expect to Win The Game.

U. OF U. BOYS ARE CONFIDENT.

Weights Are About Even and Teams Are Apparently Evenly Matched -Struggle Begins at 3:30.

There is something doing. If you don't believe it, go up to Cumming's field and see for yourself. The trouble began, at 3:30 the principals claiming to be in the very pink of con dition, and prepared to put up the right of their lives. The weather man gave the duck hunters the worst of ft, and this means that a big crowd is on the field to witness the dispute between the U. of U. and the University of Boulder, Colo. The Boulder team got here yesterday fifteen minutes late 4:30 s'dock. There were about twenty in the party, fifteen of them being gridiron rees. They are a husky looking lot. Every man is in good condition for today's struggle, and they all have an abiding faith that victory will perch upon their faith that victory win perch upon the hances. Coach Copp said:

Our team from Boulder is in fine form and we expect to win today's game. It will be our first game, but the boys have been working hard in preparation for it, and it is our determination to make the score as large as possible. The game we regard as being the biggest of the year takes place at Boulder next Saturday, when we meet the Nebraska team. We have had a pleasant trip over here and had a pleasant trip over here and her we win or lose we will leave with recollections of a pleasant here with Josoffections of a preasant visit."

Then their arrival here yesterday afterpuen the Houlder boys at once went to the Kenyon, attrect themselves in their war fogs and drove to Cumming's field to bosen up a bit. Their practise work was watched by a large crowd. It was almost as good as a real game to see the Colorideans go through their signals in such a rapid manner. They have their team work down to a fine point, and it was evident to all who saw the mat work it hat he local team would have to play a fast, snapp game to win. The team averages shout 12 poundage, which is a little in excess of our cleven. The line of the home team is fully as heavy as that of the visitors, but the backs are lighter.

The home team held a secret signal practice inst evening, and at the conclusion of it Conch Maddock appeared perceity satisfied.

Maddock regrets that the game

WHAT PITCHERS HAVE DONE.

They llave Been Masters of Uall Gemes Buring the Past Season.

most remarkable development of

The most remarkable development of the baseball season now drawing to a coze has been the mastery over the same gained by the pitching department. The drop in batting in both eagues has brought about a condition unhard of in the history of big lengue baseball and it bids fair to all but wipe out the 30 batting class. In the American league but three regular batsmen now show above that mark, while in the National the showing is only a snade better. Such a condition of affairs naturally leads to elections as to its cause.

Such veterans as Jesse Burkett, Jimme McAleer and Dick Padden cannot aplain exactly why the pitchers are showing so strong this season, but they all agree that it is the worst year in their experience for the batsmen. Jesse Burkett lays much of the blaine on the such as by slump in the sticking figures. McAleer says the "apit ball," but this could hardly cause such a big slump in the sticking figures. McAleer says the "apit ball," is responsible for but a small percentage of the batting los, as but tew pitchers can control it properly, and it as more dangerous to the one using it than to the opposing batsmen it, it, can not be properly controlled. Neither Padden nor Jack Utanor can give any cause of the effectiveness on sive any cause of the individual around.

All-around improvement in pitching was the controlled and improvement in pitching was the control of the property and it is controlled.

All-around improvement in pitching is what is causing the trouble." says McAleer.

It is not so much that the star where of the two big leagues are better than they need to be, but that the pitching staffs on the average are made up of bigher class men. The veteranse are as good as they ever were, but they last happened as they ever were, but they have not last in past seasons. The "spit ball" is something novel and a good many player allach more importance to it than they would under other conditions. As soon as the novelty has worn off it will take its place with the 'jump ball' and other kindred innovations which have been made in recent years.

The improvement course in the new material, which has made even the weaker pitching staffs of this season as past years. Two or three stars formerly made up a pitching staff. Now you get a new pitcher every day during a series. Look at the bunch of food voungaters that have been thought out since the war between hand, National and American leagues has better than that in any big making in the American league this season is better than that in any big Fight is Called Off.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 30.—The Neary-Long fight was caleld off this afternoon by the sheriff. It is given out that the Civic Union requested the sheriff to act. The union admits that this is true. It is also claimed that the Washington Bog-ing club, a rival concern, was interested in stopping the fight.

FIERCE FIGHT AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Joe Walcott and Joe Gans Battled For Twenty Rounds to A Draw.

THE FORMER BROKE HIS ARM.

Accident Happened in the Fourth Round-Decision Not Well Received By the Faus.

Woodward's Pavilion, San Francisco, Sept. 30 .- Joe Gans and Joe Walcott, holders respectively of the lightweight and welterweight championships, fought twenty rounds to a draw at Woodward's pavilion tonight. The decision was not well received by many of the spectators, who seemed of the opinion that Gans should have been favored.

The fight throughout was furious, Gans started off thie a winner, enjoying a declded advantage in the opening two rounds. After the second round, however, when toward the middle of the contest, Walcott, employing his right al-contest, Walcott, employing his right almost exclusively to Gans' hody and kidneys, gained a decided lead, Walcott put tremendous power behind his blows, and several times greatly weakened Gans, who was unable to stop the terrible one-shaught of Walcott's rights.

After the tenth round Gaus succeeded in evading most of Walcott's vicious swings and forced Walcott's leads with straight, clean rights and lefts to the face and several times had Walcott gazed. The latter twice experienced difficulty in locating his corner, From the eleventh to the sixteenth rounds it was nip and tock, first one and the then other taking the lead. The tide turned in Garis favor in the seventeenth round. In this round Gans met all Walcott's rushes with straight rights from the shoulder and forced him to fight back wildly.

GANS MADE GREAT FINISH.

The twentleth and last round was a repetition of the preceding round. Gans employed his right and left principally on the face and Walcott laced out his right and left, but failed to find a resting place on his shifty opponent. In the inighting Gans was clearly Walcott's master.

The decision of the referce was greeted The decision of the referee was greeted with tremendous hooting and hissing and eries of "Gan!" "Gans!".

After the fight it developed that Walcott had broken his right arm. An examination made of the injured member disclosed that the arm was broken at the elbow, the accident occurring in the fourth round. A doctor in attendance verified the statement as to his injury. Gans said: "I think it was a bad decision, but do not care to offer any criticism."

rhen, to show that no ill-feeling ex-isted, he walked cross the ring and shook hands with Walcott. Walcott's manager stated his willing-ness to give Gans a return match for $1,000, the same weights to govers, name-ly, 141 pounds at the ringside.

Delamar Fails Again.

Cincinnati, Sept. 30,—Major Delmar to-day failed in an attempt to break the world's trotting record for geldings, going a rule in 2:02%. Weather conditions were not very favorable for a trial of this kind. Major Delmar was, paced by a runner driven by Scott Hudson, and finished in good shape.

Major Delmar has a record of 1:59%, trotted with wind shield and pace makers in front and at the side, but this is not recognized by the trotting association. Both Cresceus and Major Delmar have trotted in 2:02% paced by a running horse only.
